The Apportionment Bill Called Up-Sen ator Pasco Offers Some Amendments to the Elections Bill-The Dolph

There were only eight Senators pres this morning at the opening of the Senate. The Morgan resolution calling for information relative to the payment of formation relative to the payment of claims of John I. Davenport as supervisor of elections and as Circuit Court commissioner was taken up.

In this connection Mr. Hoar laid before the Senate a communication received from Davenport calling attention to charges made against him in the Senate and offering himself as a witness under oath to any committee desiring to examine him.

Mr. Gorman trusted that the Senator from Massachusetts would offer a resolution to investigate the conduct of Davenport, as requested by that gentleman.

Mr. Hoar replied that he had not considered the inatter. He merely presented the letter for the information of the Senate.

Mr. Gorman believed that when Mr Davenport desired an investigation is should be accorded him.

Mr. Carlisle said the Senator from Mary should be accorded him.

Mr. Carlisle said the Senator from Maryland had mistaken the terms of the letter.
Mr. Davenport did not request that his conduct be investigated, but simply expressed his willingness to go himself before a committee and make a statement. If Mr. Davenport's conduct was to be investigated in the regular way Mr. Davenport's communication did not indicate that any other persons should be heard.

The communication was referred, and Mr. Morgan's resolution was adopted.

The credentials of Mr. Pugh as a Senator from Alabama were presented.

A bill was passed authorizing the Bowling Green and Northern Railroad Company to bridge the Green and Barren rivers, Kenticky.

The Senate then proceeded with the consideration of the Dolph resolution, providing for an investigation as to whether the right to vote is denied or abridged in any State; with the Vest amendment extending the investigation to an inquiry as to whether by State legislation any man had been denied the right to work on public works by reason of his color.

Mr. Morgan spoke in opposition to the resolution until the morning hour expired, when the Elections bill was taken up, and Mr. Morgan continued his argument against it.

Senator Pasco proposed this morning an amendment to the Elections bill comprising two new sections. The first of these provides that it shall be unlawful to give or to promise to give any valuable consideration to induce a voter to vote or

The dreary and profitless discussion of the Elections bill went on again to-day in the Elections bill went on again to-day in spite of the fact, now recognized even by its most devoted friends, that it is really dead.

The talk now going on hardly rises to the dignity of a funeral oration. It is rather the chatter and gossip of a wake.

The Elections bill is the President's favorite measure, and he is in despair over its untimely decease, and is disposed to censure the doctors for not saving the poor thing's life. But that is impossible. Not even the injection of Presidential lymph by means of the message could do more than prolong its wretched life a few days.

Not even the injection of Presidential lymph by means of the message could do more than prolong its wretched life a few days.

When the bill containing the plan of the Republican caucus for the financial relief of the country comes to hand, as it will one day this week, the Elections bill will be laid aside until after that measur be disposed of.

About that time the Appropriation bills will come up, and the Elections bill will again be made to stand aside. A few measures of general legislation will be disposed of, and the Elections bill will be eff where it is to-day, on the flat of its back staring at the illuminated ceiling of the Senate Chamber.

It is thoroughly recognized that the Elections bill cannot pass the Senate in any form unless the rules of procedure of that body be changed. It is further ecognized that the rules themselves, unless through the arbitrary action of the Presiding Officer, unfalteringly sustained by the majority.

A majority of the Republicans no doubt are willing to change the rules, and can secure a cancus order to that effect, but who would preside? There's the rule.

When Vice-President Morton was approached on the subject, he said, in effect, that he would prefer they would get a more experienced man to preside; that that would be the better plan. This was simply Mr. Morton's diplomatic way of refusing to carry out the cancus dictum.

Mr. Ingalls was then approached. It is well known that he has the courage, provided his inclination coincided. His reply, in substance, was that he did not care to preside at a time and on an occasion when the Constitutional Presiding Officer declined to act.

Now, if neither Morton nor Ingalls will act, who will? Will any one?

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

The Bill Proposed by the Republican Senatorial Cancus. Following the action of the committee of the Republican Senatorial caucus, which yesterday gave a long hearing to Secretary Windom, came the caucus itself last night at the residence of Senator McMillan. Nothing was considered except financial measures. No final conclusion was reached, but from the discussion it see as clear that the bill to be proposed will provide for the purchase of the 12,000,000 ounces of silver now on the market at the rate of $3,000. chase of the 12,000,000 oances of silver now on the market at the rate of $1,000,000 oon to the parket of builton a month, in addition to the $1,500,000 now required to be beight by law also for the parchase of enough silver built in additional to make up for the retirement of national-bank notes whenever they fall below $190,000,000 treasury notes based on the builtion to be issued in their stead, and if builtion for this latter purpose cannot be had, ordinary Treasury notes to be issued.

The canens also favared the recoinage of trade dollars, there being about 5,000,000 of them, and of the subsidiary coin, o which there is about $20,000,000.

There are some other minor matter which will doubtless be included in the bill, such as charging cost for converting gold coin into bars, to make the expense of the exportation of gold that much greater.

The much-talked-of 2 per cent bonds, either inter-convertible or to run for a term of years, which finds so much favor in the financial minds of Secretary Windom and Senator Sherman, will not be adopted by the caucus. By inter-convertible is meant that any person having legal tender notes can go and buy these bonds, or having these bonds can go to the Treasury or sub-treasury and get notes.

the Treasury or sub-treasury and get notes.

It looks like converting the Treasury into a savings bank, with the rate of interest at 2 per cent. A good deal may be said in favor of this plan, perhaps, but it hasn't the ghost of a chance of getting through Congress at this session. It might possibly pass the Senate, though, from the expressions in the caucus last night of some of the Senators, that is extremely doubtful, but it certainly would be rejected by the House. There is a deep-rooted opposition in the minds of many—perhaps a majority of the Representative—against any increase of the bended indebtedness of the Government. A prominent Republican, one who was re-elected, too, said this morning.

"I am opposed to the issuance of bonds in times of peace. In times of war they are a necessity to raise money, but there is neither necessity nor excuse for them at this time, and I shall vote against any proposition looking to their issue. I am willing to vote for an issue of Treasury notes equal in amount to the proposed bend issue, these notes to remain in the Treasury until absorbed in the usual way in the channels of trade."

That is an index of the feeling as to the further issuance of bonds. It is such that any bond scheme, no matter how strongly or plausibly urged, will fail in the House if not in the Senate.

The caucus meets again to-morrow night.

General Spinota's Colors. Andy Smith is the young gentleman detailed from the Government Printing Office to take orders from Congressmen for documents, etc. He has his office in the old hall of the House of Representatives. He is a very capable man, and is popular with members. This afternoon blunt old General Spinola went up to Andy and said:

"Look here. Andy, I want about fifty Congressional Directories for distribution among my constituents. I want them well bound, too."
"What color. General?" asked Mr. Office to take orders from Congressmen

What color, General?" asked Mr.

Smith.

"Make 'cm red and blue. And, by the way, Andy, I want one covered with green. This I will mail to the Union League Club, that rampant Republican-Know-Nothing organization. It will be a gentle reminder to them that old Erin is dear to my heart, if not to theirs.

J. Stoddart Johnston, editor "Lippin-cott's Magazine," called on a number of Senators to-day in the interest of the In-ternational Copyright bill. He was as-sured an attempt would be made to call it up at this session, and that if it came up it would pass.

THE IRISH LEADER WOUNDED IN A MELEE AT BALLVNAHILL.

He and Parnell Address Rival Meeting and a Riot Ensues-Fighting at the Head of His Followers-Intense Ex-

DUBLIN, Dec. 16 .- Intense excitemen has been created here by the receipt of news of a serious conflict at Ballynahill and the wounding of Michael Davitt. Mr. Parnell was addressing a meeting at that place to-day, while at the same place and time another meeting was being addressed by Messrs. Davitt and Tanner. So close together were the meeting places that the voices of the orators of one party were plainly audible to those of the other. The speeches were of a most violent character, and the words of the speakers were interrupted by cheers, insulting jeers and defant cries.

Mr. Parnell's appearance was the signal for a mighty outburst of applause from his adherents. The arrival of their leader, coupled with the galling taunts of their opponent, seemed to excite the Parnellites to fury, and with a wild and sudden rush they threw themselves upon the opposition meeting.

Promptly jumping from the speaker's platform Davitt and Tanner, with the priests by their sides, placed themselves at the head of their friends, and fighting desperately and fiercely drove back the attacking Parnellites. Sticks, clubs and stones were freely used, and Davitt, while pressing on in the front of his supporters, received a severe scalp wound. others are known to have been more or less severely injured, but nothing more than the most meagre details are yet to hand.

SITTING BULL'S DEATH.

The War Department Receives Many Dispatches Regarding It. War Department officials were busy today receiving and answering telegrams on the Indian situation. A feeling of grati-fication seemed to pervade the Department over the death of Sitting Bull, who was regarded as the brains of the recent Indian uprising. The effect of his death was very generally discussed, but rather in the light of apprehension for the future.

Captain Fechet arrived in good time at scene of Indian fight. Drove the Indians away. He reports Sitting Bull, his son, Black Bird, Catch Bear and four others killed; also seven police killed. He reports he has body of Sitting Bull.

The St. Paul Light-Weight Wins in Thirteen Rounds. NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The much-talkedf prize fight between Jimmie Kennard of St. Paul and Billy Murray of this city, 110-

St. Paul and Billy Murray of this city, 110pound men, took place carly this morning near Stamford, Conn., and was witnessed by 300 sports from this city and vicinity.
The fight was for $1,000 a side. The men were in perfect form. Kennard was handled by Joe McAuliffe, and Joseph Quinn did the honors for Murray. Frank Stevenson acted as referee.

Kennard began the fighting, Murray acting on the defensive, but up to the eighth round very little execution was done. The eighth, however, was a rattler.
It was give and take all through. Murray had a shade the best of the round. After this there was a lall until the twelfth round, when there was another rattling set-to. Kennard had much the best of this round. He landed heavily on Murray's stomnch and face time and again, and had Murray groggy before the call of time.
Murray planted many blows in Kennard's face during this round, but they lacked force.

Both men were comparatively fresh when time was called for the thirteenth round. Kennard began rushing matters, and put in some heavy blows. He soon had his man dazed, and before the round was half over he got in a stinger on Murray's jaw, completely knocking him out. About $3,000 changed hands.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach disord BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.

"The Rivals" at the National. In all the years since the first production of the wonderful old comedy of him who was accredited with the best play, thu best was accredited with the best play, the best farce, the best comic opera, and the grandest cration of his time. It is doubtful if "The Rivals" ever had a worthier representation than that of last evening. It is perhaps the highest possible tribute to the versatile and immortal genius of Richard Brinsley Sherician that the wit and humor and subtle touches of the human nature of a humbred and twenty years ago can still move an American audience to mirth and laughter in only less degree than a man falling through a skylight or being hit with a stuffed club in a Hoyt farce-comedy. Last night's audience at all events developed all these gratifying symptoms of intelligent enjoyment with a fervor that left little room for question of its sincerity. The marvelous art and subtle skill of Joseph Jefferson are at their best in the whimsical humor and more whimsical terrors of "fighting" Bob Jeres, and time has added a mellow charm to this ever memorable impersonation, which, if possible, enhances its familiar merits. It is a very high order of artistic attainment which achieves its results by methods so time and true; a look, an intonation, a gesture so quiet and natural as to be hardly noticeable till a tioal wave of inextinguishable laughter sweeps the house from its anchorage of propriety. As wonderful as over are those cloquent and electric eyes, and the facial changes which are opies without words, while the genial and lovable personality of the man permeates with magnetic life and thrill the work and consummate art of the actor.

The "personal equation" is, as always, an even stronger factor in the achievements of Mr. Florence, and it is this which gives to his Sir Lucius O Trioger an attraction and sympathy peculiarly its own. It is an unctious, jovial and would have been a pleasure to know so long as he did not insist upon your fighting a duel. As such it is in all respects a worthy companion piece to the Aeres of Mr. Jofferson, and the brimmerate of greatness, with apologies to the lemmerate of greatness, with apo farce, the best comic opera, and the grand piece to the Aeres of Mr. Jefferson, and the triumeirate of greatness, with apologies to the aex, would not be complete without the immortal Mrs. Malaprop of Mrs. John Drew. It is still as we have so long known it the same priceless and clean-cut cameo of dramatic art, the secret of which will perish with the artist and the gem it self only remain in the cabinet of memory. It is not well, as Mrs. Malaprop herself felicitionsly observes, "to anticipate the past" or pose in the ungracious role of laudator temporis act. But it should be remembered that with this matchless trio we will very nearly bid farewell to the grand old comedy of legitimate art and traditions. There is no Joseph Jefferson the fourth to continue the succession, and no where from the ranks of the "trouser" drama or the glorified variety show which now hold the stage, does there seem reasonable assurance of perpetuation.

"The Liliputians" at Albaugh's.

The very novel exotic which burst into cloom under the festering care of Manager Albaugh last night at the Grand Opera House was Liliputian, indeed, as to its per-sonnel, but wholly vast and Brobdingnagian somed, but wholly vast and Brobdingnagian as a dramatic surprise and success. The large and appreciative audience was as exceptional in some respects as the performance, and the Diplomatic Corps and Washington society, in full dress from the Porter-Campbell welding, and our substantial German-speaking fellow-citizens were very equally represented. The good points of the Teutonic humor of the play found ready response from such an assemblage, and the applause and laughter were well nigh continuous. It certainly was a very amusing cutertainment and well worthy the favor with which it was received.

Ten fumny little men and women, whose aggregate length would not reach half-way across the big stage of Albaugh's, for nearly three hours gave opera, burlesque, farce, pantomime and ballet, in a style that would have been highly creditable in the same number of hallet, in a style that would have been highly creditable in the same number of first-class artists of the regulation size. It was a comic opera troupe in petto, and the acting, singing and dancing very much more artistic than we too often find them from Thespians big enough to do better. By long (?) odds, the biggest man in the cast, by virtue of his being the smallest, was Mr. Franz Ebert, whose tricksome Puck was one of the funniest little chaps conceivable, and whose colossal spree and great disrobing act fairly convulsed the house with laughter. The quaint little Tyrolese, Messrs. Wolf and Zink and Miss Toni Meister, were scarcely less diverting, and, indeed, all the midget prime donne, tenori and suppositious basis covered their minute selves with glory.

The minor personages of the play are, in a measure, the major ones, inasmuch as, to the last good looking ballet girl, they would appear to have been selected with a view to height and contrast, "The Pupil in Magic," as the drama is entitled, ranges, geographically, all the way from Berlin via the North Pole to the realms of Fairy Land, and musically from "Lohengrin" and "Tannhaeuser" to the "Grand Duchesse" and "Mikado." Altogether it is so bright and novel that it should crowd the house through the week,

Don't Want Ugly Soldiers.

From the Lendon Daily Telegraph.

Ugliness, as a disqualifying cause, seems intelligible in a candidate for matrimony, but is certainly less so when the question is one of timess for military service. This however, is one on the list of disqualifications laid down by the head of the Medical Department in the manual just issued on "Conscription in France." Latterly the French authorities seem to be much more liberal in admitting the claims of men who do not wish to serve. The rejections are 5 per cent, more numerous than of the previous conscription. The French are looking more to the quality of their army than to the number of recruits. Excessive ugliness, says the military dector, makes a man ridiculous, prevents him from having authority over his comrates and leaves him morbid and sensitive. If the ugliness be adequate the claim must be allowed. "Male hysteria" is another valid plea. The army doctors say it exists among French conscripts, and it is the more objectionable as it is contagious.

Sunday morning Peter St. George, of that place, gave the alarm that his wife was missing. A Very Pretty Story.

From the New York Son.
The army of colored employes in the various departments threaten to make a united protest against the long-established custom of compelling them to act as house servants outside of office hours. Nearly every chief of a division has as a dining-room servant a colored employe of the Government. When a colored man is appointed to a place as a laborer or messenger it is nearly always a necessary qualification that he is a good waiter. In the morning, before the hour for him to begin work, he goes to the residence of the official to attend the furnaces, sweep the steps, and serve breakfast to the family. After this he reports to the department, where he remains until 4 o'clock, when he again returns to his employer's residence and serves dinner. If a man should refuse to be used in this way, and occasionally one does, he is immediately united protest against the long-established should refuse to be used in this way, and occasionally one does, he is immediately discharged for his insubordination.

There is an official in the Treasury Department who has five of the Government's employes to act as servants about his house before and after hours. He has sons and daughters in society, and the little suppers which he often gives are always served by colored men, who are messengers and laborers in his department. There is even a Cabinet officer under President Harrison who has his dinners served every day by a messenger in his department of the public service. The messenger complains bitterly to his intimate friends about this, but he is careful to wear a pleasant smile while doing his household work for fear of losing the little place he holds at $720 a year. This messenger was once a member of the Legislature of his State, and he came on here as a leading Republican, deserving well of his party. This recommendation did not go as far toward securing him his place as messenger as did the fact that he had been brought up as a waiter in a Southern gentleman's family.

"Mustache" a Test Word.

From the New York World.

A purist remarked yesterday, in the course of a discussion on accents and phrases findicative of New York city, that a word which tested the education of a speaker very broadly was mustache "There is no more certain sign of an incomplete education," he said, "than this word indicates. If the speaker says mustache his doom is sealed. It is the custom in the West, by the way, to a very great extent, to gives this erroneous and vulgar accent on the first syllable. Western people also have a labit of saying Broadway, which indicates the section of the country which they hall from. In Chicago and the Northwest they invariably pronounce it Broadway. In the Southwest the Southern accent on the 'o' makes a distinction. There are, in fact, a great many oddities of inflection and emphasis on this particular word by out-of-town people, though it is apparently the simplest combination of words imaginable.

The stock market this morning was somewhat disappointing to some people who had expected a boom as a result of the meeting of railroad presidents yesterday. Instead of a boom there was a marked selling and prices declined steadily under an outflow of stocks.

At 11 o'clock the decline ranged from a to 14 per cent. Dealings were confined to about a dozen stocks, however, notably Union Pacific, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, St. Paul, Union Pacific, Louisville and Nashville, Northern Pacific preferred, Burlington and Rock Island.

Union Pacific was the feature of the second hour's business. It was freely pressed for sale and fell 24 per cent. below last night's figures. The remainder of the list shaded off fractionally. At this writing the market is heavy. Sales 125,900 shares.

The Real Article.

Atlanta Journal.

I think that the best color line that a I think that the best color line that a negro can draw is the frazzled end of a half-inch rope over the angular proportions of a Georgia mule. It won't do, people, to allow the third and fourth to become wards of the nation. No, not even if tickets to Africa should spring to $2. Atlanta is a white man's town and a white man's town she will remain at all hazards. If this paragraph makes the North mad, let her tear her hair.
